Roses and fruit trees can be planted, and deciduous flowering trees such as prunus; - Flowering cherry, crab apple, flowering peach, lilac, laburnum. Larger trees are also can go in now, silver birch, liquidambar, box elder, golden elm, claret and golden ash. Japanese maples, are ideal for Japanese gardens, as pot specimen or in a courtyard providing it is very cool and shaded in the afternoon, as the hot summer winds and heat can burn the leaves.

Rose and fruit tree pruning can start this month . I like to prune mind early August.

VEGETABLES;- Sow broad beans, peas and all varieties of onions, also strawberries and rhubarb, and asparagus crowns. Prepare the garden with plenty of old compost for the rhubarb and asparagus add lime. Don`t add lime to strawberries they like a acid soil.

FLOWERS;- Seedling for sowing; Stock, viola, primula, wallflower, russel lupins, delphiniums, foxglove, poppies, sweet William and calendula, alyssum, snapdragons, verbena, dianthus, and sow the seed direct of Virginian stock, which make a lovely border.

You can buy camellias while they are in bloom, and snip off dead camellia flowers that hang on the bush. Inspect stored dahlia tubers and discard any mouldy or rotting ones.

Nip off spent pansy and viola flowers to encourage new blooms.

Feed spring bulbs fortnightly with a liquid fertilizer for flowers.

Plant summer-blooming bulbs, such as pineapple lily, calla lily and Scarborough lily.

Prune winter –blooming wattles after flowering to restrict seeding and unwanted spread.

Cut herbaceous perennials off at ground level, chop up the clippings and add them to the compost heap.

Shorten last season`s wisteria shoots by cutting them back to two or three buds from the base.

Apply an anti-transpirant spray to frost- sensitive plants to provide some winter protection, or cover with frost cloth or shade cloth for added protection.

Prune hydrangeas just above plump buds, as well as cutting some of woody branches hard, as this will generate new branches from low in the bush. Put cutting in potting mix for new plants.

To Keep cauliflower white, on a dry day pull some of the larger leaves up over the heads and tie with a rubber band or string. This will shade the head from direct sunlight and help it to stay white. Check under the leaves regularly so you can see when your cauli is ready to pick.

Windellama SES First Aid & CFR

The Windellama SES have had a busy period assisting with the recent storms and flooding in both the local area and being deployed to out of the area incidents. There have also been an increased number of calls for our SES Community First Responders (CFR)

Windellama and the nearby area is classed as remote in terms of ambulance response time due to the distance from Goulburn or if Goulburn is busy an ambulance may have to come from Braidwood.

Many people are not aware of the work of our Community First Responders and are very surprised when they call "000" in an emergency our members in their orange uniforms arrive to render emergency care until an ambulance arrives. Our CFRs are all highly trained by the NSW Ambulance Service and all have a Certificate II in Emergency Medical Care along with NSW Ambulance conducting monthly training at our SES shed to ensure our skills are always current. Our callouts range from farm and road incidents to cardiac and breathing difficulties. We deliver emergency treatment and support to our patients until the ambos arrive. When the ambos arrive we do a hand over report with information on the patient's medical condition and treatment, we can then be called upon to assist in further treatment and loading of the patient. If a helicopter is required CFRs will source a suitable landing site, give coordinates, and mark out the landing site, and then assist with the loading of the patient.

As many organizations are finding at the moment, COVID and the flu season are impacting our CFR's ability to meet all the calls for assistance. If you are interested in joining the SES or becoming a CFR, please contact Kevin Muffet on 4844 7143 or come along to our SES meeting held at our Windellama shed on second and third Monday night of the month at 6.30 pm.

As we all know, the quicker people receive medical assistance, not only does it reduce their immediate stress, but increases their chance of survival. That is why our CFRs play such a vital and important role in this community.

Eve Langham

This section deals with the statistics as far as the State Emergency Service activities for Windellama Unit during the past 12 month period and they are as follows;

- 16 storm jobs, trees down or on buildings.
- 3 flood rescue.
- 1 out of area support job.

75 Community First Responder activities. (We have had to transport Ambulance Paramedics to various jobs due to flooded or damaged roads, all in the line of duty.)

There has also been two members who have travelled to out of area activities, one area is Lismore way, the other has been to the Western Division. More details of the type of activities involved will be in more detail next month.

This makes a total of 95 activities of various kinds, therefore our dedicated members have proved their worth and should be congratulated.

We now find that due to the recent heavy rainfall and unpredictable nature of the weather that we have to provide a sand bag filling facility at our local Windellama Unit.

Our Windellama Unit will be open on Market days whenever possible, so come along and talk to our willing team, you may even wish to join us.

Eve Langham has very kindly written an article for you to read and I thank her for her nicely written addition.

May 2022 Rainfall

We received an additional drop of 43.5mm at our place giving us a total of 104mm for the month. The consequence of this amount of rain was and still is slushy ground every where and even though June rainfall is only 9mm the ground is still slushy in low lying areas. If you are using our driveway don't go either side of it, unless you bring a shovel and tow rope.

Cold Weather

The couple of frosts received in early June had the chainsaws working overtime in trying to keep the wood up to the house fires. I don't know about anyone else but our wood fire heater certainly gobbles up the wood.

Fruit Trees

I'm still waiting for all trees to loose their leaves so I can finish the tidy-up pruning. Even the grape vines have a few remaining leaves. As soon as the grape vines shed their leaves I will prune a lot harder than last year. Overall, the fruit was plentiful, but disappointing in regards to being sour. Probably because of to little sunshine.

The citrus trees have their golden shine, possible because its cold.

Around our place, autumn and early winter when most trees leaves have changed to their autumn colours some trees were 50/50 with green leaves on the tree top and the lower half in autumn colour.

Vegetable Garden

One thing that liked a lot of water in the veggy garden are the weeds. In-between the beds I'm going to slash with the whipper snipper and then cover with paper or cardboard and old hay.

The Silverbeet did not enjoy the 2 big frosts received and went droopy but after some nice days are looking better.

Flower Gardens

Some of the roses I removed seemed like they were on their way to China going by how deep the roots went in my endeavour to remove all roots and soil surrounding them. I had 4 roses completely removed when I found out about a product called Rootgrow.

Rootgrow is a Mycorrhizal fungi and supposed to enhance the soil with beneficial microbes where the old rose was growing and thus eliminate the need to remove roots and soil – time will tell!

I removed a peach tree last year that turned its toes up when loaded and I replaced it with another peach tree. However, this new tree looks like its not performing, so maybe Rootgrow might be needed?

Bird Life

Last month I reported that a large flock of Black Cockatoos flew over consisting of several birds. Well low and behold they played a visit just after completing the news letter last month but this time they landed and definitely were not quiet with at least 50 or more in the flock. They looked in terrific condition and stayed for at least 40 minutes.

We have a few unwanted bird visitors like both types of Minor Birds and a Butcher Bird. I like all birds but prefer these ones to be somewhere else.

Meeting

We continue to discuss future direction.

NSW RURAL FIRE SERVICE

Windellama Rural Fire Brigade

Be Grass Fire Prepared

Although it's been very wet this year and cold lately, low rainfall and high winds over the last few weeks have led to dry grasslands across Windellama. After an increase in grass growth earlier this year, that long grass is now curing and becoming more fire prone. Your ground may be wet and possibly boggy but the tall grass is dry.

Grass fires can threaten quickly; even the most seasoned farmer can be caught out and a ute and water tank will be no match for the speed of a grass fire. It's important to remember grassfires are unpredictable, can start easily and spread quickly. The taller and drier the grass, the quicker and more intensely the fire will burn. Be sure to keep your grass short by mowing, grazing or slashing it back.

If you have conducted burning on your property, it's important to ensure you have fully extinguished any fire. Smouldering stumps can reignite and become fast-moving under the predicted winds for Windellama during July.

Here are simple things that you can do to reduce your risk:

- Create firebreaks and keep grass short – you can mow it, graze it or slash it back
- Maintain your machinery and carry fire suppression equipment such as a 9L water fire extinguisher, a dry powder fire extinguisher or a 16L knapsack water spray pump.
- Know where you can move your animals to safety
- Check and maintain firefighting equipment like pumps and hoses
- Make sure a fire truck can access your property such as gates, trees or obstructions
- Think 4x4 for access – clear 4 metres wide by 4 metres high

Myth: Grass fires are less dangerous than bush fires

Planned burns

If you're planning to burn on your property, you need to Notify us of your planned burn - NSW Rural Fire Service. Notifying us of your planned burn can help reduce unnecessary emergency calls and you also need to let your neighbours know at least one day ahead and supervise the fire until it is out.

If you see an unattended grass fire, or if your life is in danger, call Triple Zero (000)

Jenni Cole - Publicity Officer

The NSW Government Energy From Waste Policy¹ states that “The operators of an energy from waste facility will need to be 'good neighbours'”. As one example, the policy states that a 'good neighbour' will make incinerator emissions information “readily available”. It can also be assumed that being a 'good neighbour' would mean incinerator operators must comply with their licence and operating conditions, promptly make the community aware of any problems and issues relating to its operations, and quickly and openly notify the community of any breaches of operating conditions that could put the community at risk.

We can make a fair assessment about whether or not Veolia will be a 'good neighbour' based on their current operations.

Are they open and honest about breaches of their licence conditions, or do they try to cover up?

Do they share information on feedback they've been given to improve their operations – for example, warnings and cautions issued by the NSW EPA or Department of Planning?

Are they proactive about communicating the reasons for amendments to their licence conditions?

Will they attempt to hide the truth if a member of our community asks for answers on matters that concern the community?

When a company is issued a fine for breaching its licence and operating conditions, these fines are listed in the NSW EPA public register on their website. This information is available for public search. However, not all breaches will result in a fine. Sometimes the EPA issues a warning or a caution, but these warnings and cautions are not listed in the public register, even though the community has a vested interest in knowing what occurred.

Earlier this year, Communities Against The Tarago Incinerator (CATTI) was informed by the EPA that Veolia had been issued a warning in December 2021 for a breach of its licence conditions. Because the information was not available on the website, we submitted a freedom of information request (called a GIPA in NSW – Government Information Public Access Request). We also asked for any other cautions and warnings that the EPA had issued Veolia over the past 9 years (the availability for digital records). Here's a timeline of the process so far...

On 16th February 2022, CATTI requested “Details of all formal warnings and disciplinary actions taken by the EPA with regard to operations at the Veolia Woodlawn Eco-Precinct since 1st January 2013”.²

Because the documents in our request involved a “third party”, the EPA was required to notify the “third party” about the request, and the “third party” can lodge an objection to the release of the information. (Legislation prevents the EPA naming the “third party”).

IS THIS HOW THE COMMUNITY WILL BE TREATED IF A TOXIC WASTE INCINERATOR IS BUILT IN TARAGO?

On 6th April the EPA informed CATTI that the “third party” had objected to the release of every document.

On 8th April, the EPA responded in writing to grant our request for information despite the “third party” objecting to the disclosure.

The “third party” then sought an internal review of the decision.

An internal review of the decision was conducted by a new team at the EPA. On 27th May the EPA decided to uphold the original decision to release the information.

The “third party” now has 40 days to apply for an external review of the decision (until 22nd July 2022).

Five months after the original request, the community still has no access to the information. Each delay makes it less likely the community will see Veolia's record prior to public exhibition of the incinerator EIS and development plans. Perhaps this is intentional. After all, nothing shouts “bad neighbour” faster than a pile of licence and operational breaches.

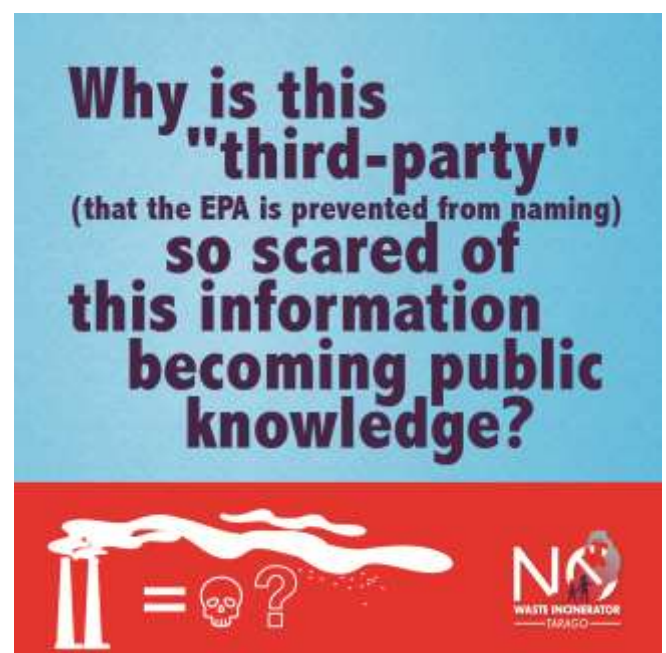

But what is more concerning is the thought that if an incinerator gets built at Woodlawn, Veolia will be managing toxic emissions and highly hazardous byproducts (fly ash). What happens when the air pollution control system malfunctions and unfiltered toxic particulates are sent spewing out over Tarago? What happens when there is a problem with the storage or management of toxic fly ash and it leaches into the water table? Will Veolia share this information with us to help us protect our children, our families and our livelihoods? Based on their current operational record, the answer seems to be a clear and resounding “No”.

For our June meeting, we had twenty-two stalwart souls attend David and Pauline's residence nestled at the base of one of the numerous Bobbaduck spurs.

David and Pauline moved here 37 years ago and their gardens are a testament to what can be achieved over a period of time. Various topiaries shaped into different car abound as well as an amazing range of banksias, proteas and grevilleas, all protected by pittosporum hedges to create areas of interest. At the bottom of the path is an amazing man cave.

This shed was lined on 3 sides by alpaca fleece shoved into a steel framework to portray images of cars and animals. It kept us all toasty warm with a gas heater roaring to keep up with the freezing weather. David quipped that as there were so many of us we could also keep warm by having a sort of tug of war up in the paddock where his tractor got bogged about 7 weeks ago.

Even though it is winter and a pretty cold one at that, there was a lot to report from other members.

Irene & Lloyd's asian greens, broccoli and spinach are still producing but as it is still very wet and cold, nothing much else much is growing. Danny and Vivian are picking olives and the occasional grape, and tomatoes are still producing. Danny is keeping busy tending his vineyard, but has about 2 months' worth of pruning to do on his vines. The vegie garden is still producing some greens even this late in the year.

Sue's leeks have produced multiple babies so no leek to eat yet; just more to plant out. She has been busy pruning her salvias and has "tons" and capsicums still growing in her glasshouse. Lynda Knapmann is still harvesting her mini cauliflowers, snow peas, kale, broccoli, spinach, potatoes and cabbage. The rest of her garden is sleeping under a nice crisp blanket of snow, courtesy of living in Crookwell. John and Carolyn have planted out their sugar snap peas and garlic.

Lyn and Phil brought some harvested black walnuts and explained that you have to wear gloves as bad staining of hands will occur when extracting the kernels. They also had a great crop of persimmons that they managed to retrieve, albeit green, before the birds grabbed them. Apparently white cockatoos do not eat them and Warren passed on that if you freeze an unripe one the day before you want to eat it, it will defrost ripe, ready to consume.

Lynda Hargan's gardens are also sleeping, but she managed to find a miniature pumpkin and some zucchini (one was over 60 cm long!). The tomatoes and strawberries are still producing in her greenhouse, and potatoes are being harvested from the foam boxes.

Warren and Judy's community garden plot in Goulburn is producing potatoes and also a lot of stinging nettle. With their 5 week trip coming up though, a lot of work has been postponed until their return.

Owen and Anne's shallots are growing well in the greenhouse as are a lot of other plants that shouldn't be there. Owen has built a bucket trap laced with peanut butter and catching at least 2 to 3 mice a night.

Maria has been using eucalyptus oil on cotton wool balls as a more natural alternative to baiting mice, and is cheaper to buy than the traditional use of peppermint oil.

Fiona has been collecting mulch to establish raised no-dig garden beds in an existing horse exercise yard at her place. Her recollections of getting the car bogged, trailer bogged and then car and trailer bogged brought many commiserations from the audience as well as more bogged stories. They also plan to cover these beds with a poly tunnel to protect from the elements.

Luckily the rain had stopped so we could have a more casual inspection of the yards. There was a lake at the end of the garden 1m one end 7m the other, David said you wouldn't be allowed to have one like that now. There was discussion on pruning of his figs which had grown quite congested and also the age of the loquat and apple trees closest to the shed.

Despite the cold and miserable conditions, we all had a great time as usual and enjoyed hearing about each other's' gardens and plans for the future.

We have welcomed a number of new faces to our recent meetings, as everyone is always welcome. If anyone else would like to come along, you can contact us through Warren and Judy Yates (0438605821) or jawyates@gmail.com.
